Many reports have been circulated to th effect that the condemned man was born down by anxiety and remorse, but all such reports were untrue. For a few weeks after he was sentenced he complained of the sentence, and said he had no show for his life. He bewailed bitterly what he called the ir justice of his trial. Said prejudice was strong that the court had to convict on flimsy evidence. But at last he became reconciled and said he was ready to die.

Mr. George Dickinson of the Society Friends, has been in almost constant attendance for some weeks and on Sunday last held religious service at the jail.

Capt. W. M. Fortescue has also been in nce and has done much for the prisoner's spiritual and temporal good. But the most devoted in their attendance on the Soomed man, have been Father Laigniel and the Sigters. Day and night they have labored with him until he became reconciled to his fate in the expectation of a holier and happier future. Las: Friday be was baptized by Father Laigniel, and received the first nion. This devoted Priest was also with him all Monday night and in the morning gave the prisoner his last communion. Sisters Rosalia and Columbia spent most of the forenoon preparing him for the great change, and all their religious consolation were received, it is said, in a truly repentant

THE NIGHT BEFORE EXECUTION Dickson spent quietly. He cat a moderat supper; talked calmly of his approaching fate; told a visitor that since he had heard his sister was dead he had nothing to desire to live for; the people were clamorous for his execution, and he would die like a man. While not engaged in religious duties he slept soundly, and seemed to rise yesterday morning refreshed and cheerful.

hese mementoes to his very few friends. THE DAY OF EXECUTION.

Yesterday, the day appointed for the execution, was ushered in darkly, the sun being veiled by a heavy fog for some hours after daylight. To the superstitious this was nature's disapproval of the event of the day, but the beautiful sunshine shortly afterwards dissipated superstitions, and gave the doomed man his last opportunity to look on nature in her most smiling garb. Long before the hour appointed, 12 m., the hills and houses in the vicinity were crowded with people anxious to see the sad spectacle. For an hour before noon the entrances to the Jail were beseiged by crowds, with and without admission cards. Not only this, but all over the city people on house tops and eminences looked with glasses or the naked eye to see the suspension of the convicted wretch. Owing to the prominence of the County Jail grounds the melancholy proceedings were visible from almost all parts of the city, and thousands availed themselves of the opportunity of seeing the law's victim dropped from earth to eternity. About twelve o'clock the excitement of the thousands who failed to get admission was intense. The Sheriff, Deputy Sheriffs and peace officers were besieged with applications for passes, and scores of men and children shouted simultaneously for the open sesame to the judicial slaughter. We regret to be compelled to say that at least one half of the vast concourse which viewed the spectacle from outside points was composed of children of both sexes. It is perhaps one of the unavoidable associations of such scenes. and must be expected as long as the law demands life for life, blood for blood; but it is none the less painful because usual. About eleven minutes of twelve o'clock the cast gates of the jail was opened, and then ommenced fierce crowding and pushing for speedy admission to the public spectacle. The crowd pressed desperately tothe entrance where three deputies were engaged in maintaining order and taking entrance cards. A stranger would have imagined a popular circus was about exhibiting so clamorous and lively was the crowd. The cry of "Show your tickets, rances from the officers "That there was no hurry, the man was still in jail," and "The execution would not take place for some time." One man rushed breathlessly up to the gate, after the crowd had been admitted, and anxiously demanded, "Is he hung yet," and on being told he yet lived, smiled pleasantly, presented his ticket and entered to feast on the unusual sight. The suggestion of an irreverent wag who had no ticket that "if the Sheriff would charge one dollar a head he would make more money and be head of the control of the preparation known as Wayne's Elixir. The American House, Boston, is most favor ably known all over the country. Unsurpassed in its thousand contrivances for the comfort and pleasare of its guests.

False Pretences.

The vast and continually increasing sales of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters have provoked the envy of a certain class of dealers in various parts of the country, who are trying to substitute their utterly worthless local mostrims for the most popular proprietary medicine in the world. These impostors hope by their false statements to obtain from the millions who patronize the great American Tonic, a sufficient number of customers to make their speculations upon the health of their neighbors profitable. As the demand for Hostetter's Bitters is now so large and trigent as to tax to their fallest extent the facilities for its mainfacture, these petty attempts to wring in the merest trash by false representations, are of little consequence to its propriectors. They are, however, a serious evil to the victimized. If, for example, at this warm season, when a real invigorant is greatly needed, the sufferer from general debility, indigestion, biliousness or nervous weakness, is coaxed into using a wishywashy compound without any medical virtue, instead of the sovereign specific in which the rarest tonic and alterative vegetable elements are scientifically combined, it is obvious that he will rue the day when he allowed himself to be thus deluded.

It is in the interest of parties who have been or may be influenced by the persuasion of plausible charlatans, that this article is published. With the light of twenty years experience to guide him, why should the invalid take a leap in the dark?
